In, On, and Under™
A Preposition Lotto Game
With this appealing preposition lotto game, children match cards to game boards and use objects to show in, on, under, as well as other common prepositions. Fun for families, classrooms, and language therapy, the game helps build skill in language development, visual perception, and fine motor coordination.

Playing the Games
Following are some Lotto Games you may wish to play, starting with the easiest game involving simple picture matching, and ending with a game in which both expressive and receptive language skills are used. You can play the games with 1-4 players. Before playing the games, introduce the children to each of the objects (chicks, penguins, hat, baby carriage, and wash tub). Put them in the one container. Punch out the Lotto Cards and store them in the other container.
Lotto Game 1
In turn, have the children draw a Lotto Card. Tell the children they can put a card on their Lotto Boards if the picture matches exactly. Continue this way until all the boards are completely covered with Lotto Cards.

Lotto Game 2
Pick a Lotto Card, and use objects to show the situation pictured on the card. Invite the children to look on their boards for the matching picture. Say, for example, “Who has the picture of the penguin on the baby carriage?” Give the card to the child who finds the matching picture. The card can go on the child’s Lotto Board. Continue with the rest of the Lotto Cards in the same way.

Lotto Game 3
Give each child a Lotto Board, a chick, and a penguin. Stack the Lotto Cards in the center, with the baby carriage, wash tub, and red hat. Have a child start by taking a card and then using the objects to show the situation pictured on the card. Help the child to describe the situation. Ask, for example, “Where is the penguin?” Again, the child with the matching picture puts the card on his or her board. The game continues until all the boards are filled.

Lotto Game 4
In turn, the children pick a Lotto Card and, without revealing the picture, tell the other players what they see on the card. The child might say, “The chick is under the wash tub.” Everyone looks on their Lotto Boards to see if they have the matching picture. The player who has the matching picture places the card on his or her Lotto Board. Play continues until all the cards are placed on boards. Have the children work at the center in pairs or on their own.
